Are you living the life you see for yourself? Or do you hold yourself back from following your heart, lest you make a mistake and fail? Are you spending more time thinking about what you should do than doing it? Or do you often feel like you should be able to do what you want to do, but when you try to do it, you don't seem to succeed? Does life seem to get in the way, when you're making other plans? Do you have too much to do and not enough time in which to get them done?

Living your vision can often be not only frustrating, but even discouraging. Even if you're not certain what your vision is, you are seeing the life you are meant to live. You might not be able to clearly identify it or explain your vision to others, but, you are always looking at it within yourself. That's why you get unhappy when the life you are living day-by-day doesn't seem to live up to your vision. You might not be able to put your finger on it, but you know in your heart of hearts that how your life seems to be isn't quite what it's meant to be. But, fear not! You are actually further along your path of living your truth and your vision than you might think.

When you feel like nothing's working and you want to throw in the towel or you're overwhelmed with so much to do and feel as if you're not making any headway, you're getting close to a major breakthrough rather than a total failure. Remember the sonic boom that a jet makes as it flies faster than the speed of sound? It's loud and sometimes scary, but it's the sound of the jet doing what it is meant to do. It's the sound of success. So, first, don't give up on yourself because you're misinterpreting what's really happening in your life. Get to know yourself as an immortal soul and your true purpose much more. Then, you'll know that you're getting closer to living your vision.

Two factors are essential for you in living your vision and fulfilling your true purpose in life. The first is to follow your heart and the second is to trust and act upon your intuition. Yet, following your heart isn't necessarily an easy proposition, isn't it? Neither is trusting enough in your intuition to always act upon its promptings. So, we'll help you take some big steps in both.

In Saturday's seminar, Having Courage: *Psychic Tools for Following Your Heart, we'll first explore the nature of courage, since that's what you'll need to be willing to follow your heart. In fact, it's really your willingness to follow your heart that is courage. Being courageous doesn't mean that you never experience fear. It means that even if you experience fear, you choose to follow what you know is true in the heart of your hearts. What does it take for you to transform your fear into courage and pursue your vision? You'll not only find answers to that question, but, even more importantly, you'll learn simple, yet powerful psychic tools to help you experience the courage to let your heart give you your direction in life. After all, it is your heart that is your unfailing compass for navigating yourself through life.

Then, on Sunday, in Knowing What to Do: *Psychic Tools for Trusting Your Intuition, you'll learn how to know what to do in your life, once you can follow your heart's direction in which way to go. When you look at a compass, you'll know which way is north, but it doesn't tell you exactly what you need to do as you head that way. Once you are traveling in the right direction, you need to find out what you are to do along the way to live your vision and fulfill your purpose for living. That's where your intuition comes in - and, you have to be willing to trust yourself enough to act on what it tells you to do, step-by-step. It's quite a leap of faith from trying to figure things out just with your intellect. Yet, when you have the courage and willingness to follow your heart, and the faith and certainty to trust your intuition, you will reach your true destination. In this seminar, you'll learn to know what to do using your intuition and to develop the certainty you need to act on it. You'll also learn valuable tools to help you to access your inner knowingness and to trust yourself.

Have courage and follow your heart. Trust your intuition and know what to do. We welcome you to join us for this amazing seminar weekend in Thousand Oaks. See you soon!
