We are immortal beings born into mortal bodies here to fulfill a single, over-riding purpose: to learn. We are here to learn to communicate with one another, with everyone and everything. Our life IS a relationship and communication is the basis of all relationships. How well we learn to say "hello" to one another, from spirit to spirit, through the communication tool that is our body, determines what kind of relationship we have with each other and with life itself. When we fully learn to say "hello" to one another, we open the gates of heaven and we graduate from this school of life.

Life, however, often throws us a curve when we're expecting a fastball straight over the plate. When we make plans not in sync with our destiny, we might hear God laughing. The sooner we learn to laugh, too, when faced with challenges, even painful ones, the more easily we find our way back to our purpose and fulfillment. Laughter is the best medicine because until we can be amused and at least a bit happier with ourselves, we do not change for the better or heal.

When you're having a tough time, would you rather stay stuck and continue to suffer or would you like to find happiness and love to live another day? If you'd choose the latter and be free, you'll delight in what you'll learn in our Saturday Seminar, When You're Up Against a Wall, Laugh First: *Psychic Tools for Happiness, Love and Freedom. You'll learn what makes certain experiences so difficult to deal with and what amusement and laughter have to do with solving the problem or getting to the truth of the matter. You'll also gain simple but powerful psychic tools and practices that you can use every day to correctly respond to whatever you encounter in your life to help you to fulfill your purpose for being here. They will become invaluable tools to safely guide you along your path to your happiness, love and freedom.

Then, in Sunday's Seminar, Wake Up and See The Roses: *How to Be Psychic, Get Real and Thrive in Relationships, you'll explore the very psychic nature of all relationships and how everyone is psychic and sensitive to the underlying energy dynamics in them - whether they believe they are psychic or not. A huge part of what rarely gets resolved in relationships is predominantly due to its psychic nature that most people overlook and never even consider. Yet, when you learn to look at what's going on energetically in a relationship and be able to manage it, you'll be amazed how much more fulfilling your life will become. Validating the psychic aspect of your relationships will make a good relationship better as well as get a stuck relationship moving in the correct direction or free yourself from the relationship. Since you are already psychic, if you don't learn to navigate yourself through your psychic life, meaning relationships, you would have difficulty being yourself and being real in the relationships. On the other hand, if you learn to correctly develop your innate psychic awareness and abilities, you'll be able to not merely survive, but truly thrive in all of your relationships. You'll learn, too, many psychic tools to help you accomplish the seemingly impossible day-by-day, step-by-step. You'll start learning to live the miracle of your soul life.
