We are living in a time of extraordinary advances in every arena of life. Our ability to be in almost instant communication with one another at the touch of a button plays a pivotal role in this phenomenon. Yet, we are also daily plagued with a growing backlog of seemingly insurmountable problems on personal, local and global levels. Furthermore, as our collective consciousness continues to expand, we no longer can continue to turn a blind eye to all that is not working in the world. We cannot merely keep hoping that everything will work out well for us. On the other hand, what can any one of us do to effect the kind of massive changes that our world is demanding? Our world truly needs a miracle. And, the only way that the world can have such a miracle is through its constituents - each of us. If we cannot have the miracle, there won't be one for the world.

To have a miracle, we must learn to live the miracle everyday. It is through living the miracle that we bring it into our lives and heal the world. To live the miracle, we need to look beyond the world that we perceive with our five senses to the Source of all the energy that makes up everything in the world. When we awaken to that limitless Spirit beyond the seeming confines of time and materiality, even in the most challenging of circumstances, we emerge joyously. We then discover that we are innately capable of working directly with the energies that make up this world and power our lives. As we learn to work with our psychic energies, we begin to live the miracle - or that which is often considered beyond the scope of possibility - and all that is good comes within our reach.

Before I was born into this world, I was aware of myself as a soul observing my mother preparing to give birth to my new body. I didn't arrive here as a baby. In fact, my mother told me decades later that when the nurse first handed me to her and she looked into my eyes, instead of a cute little newborn, she saw a wise old man looking back at her. It frightened her, so she immediately gave me back to the nurse and told her to take me back!

Yes, some of us come here a bit more aware than others. It is a further blessing to get to retain at least some of that awareness as we go through the arduous process of growing up in a body. I spent the first twenty years of my life this time around learning how to get into communication with everyone else and retain as much of my awareness of spirit as I could. Yet, even as I started the gradual process of forgetting more and more of who I was as spirit and what I was capable of, I did my best to remember by entertaining myself with the idea that I could do so much more than I was able to demonstrate in the world. For example, I knew I should be able to move objects simply with my mind. Yet, when I would attempt to make the candlestick slide over from one side of the table to the other just by concentrating on it from a meter away, it never moved even a little. Finally, however, I discovered that as I looked at the sea urchin shell that I hung from the ceiling with thread, I could control the energy around them with my mind and they would sometimes begin to swing back and forth. Occasionally, I was even able to make them go around in circles first one way and then the other. Of course, some abilities came naturally, like knowing answers to certain questions or seeing people's auras or putting my hands on people to heal them. The problem I ran into with all of that, however, was that not everyone looked upon it favorably. Earlier in my life, I also had difficulty in communicating with people about what was obvious to me, but seemingly unfathomable to them.

I knew somehow that I had to teach people, not only what I knew about the nature of life and our purpose in living it, but also how to be able to experience life as joyously as I've experienced it. I've always wanted to help people live happier, healthier, and truly fulfilling lives. So, if you've been seeking deeper truths, practical answers to your spiritual development, and a way to live more joyously, please join us in this evening workshop I will be giving in one of my all-time favorite cities in the world. Not only will you learn about awakening to Spirit everyday no matter what you might be dealing with in your life, but I'll teach you several simple, but powerful psychic energy tools you can use daily to enhance your life and fulfill more of your purpose for being here. I'll guide you in a fun way to learn to start working with energy so that you can live more of the miracle that is your soul life in this world.

May the light of truth shine ever more brightly upon your every step. With gratitude, love and laughter,

Michael
