Do you wish you could contribute much more to others' happiness and fulfillment? Do you want to do something more with your life than what you've been doing? Or live your life with more joy and laughter? Have you needed to take your next step in life, but haven't known what that is or how to do it? Don't worry, there's nothing wrong with you. These are just a few of the feelings and questions you will have when you begin to listen to your soul's call. You are awakening to your true nature.

If we are breathing, we are living in this world. Yet, this world is quite the alien place for us as spirit. Contrary to the popular notion that we start living when we are born into this world through our mothers, we actually start forgetting how alive we already are, once we're birthed into our still-forming physical bodies. In order to learn to survive in this rather hostile environment we call the world, we divert an enormous amount of our innate awareness, intelligence, and creative power into becoming a separate, individual, human person. Quickly, we seem to forget that we are limitless, eternally bright, and loving spirit.

During our earlier life, most of us learn that, in order to survive as an individual, we must isolate ourselves more and more. The more isolated we become, however, the more desperately we begin seeking companionship and some sense of belonging in the world outside of ourselves. We look for friends, lovers, family, work, money, entertainment, success, political power, and many other things in this world to fill that expanding gap we experience deep within us. At first, a special someone or something seems to fill that emptiness and then we feel that there is meaning in our lives. But, then, sooner or later, we lose that which has been temporarily filling that void and we grieve. Each of us experiences this cycle many times in our lives - until we begin to ask, "What am I really here for? Is happiness meant to be just a fleeting experience?" And, as we begin to turn our attention inward, seeking what the source and meaning of our lives might be within our own beingness, we embark upon a magnificent new adventure and a journey of limitless possibilities - and miracles.

If you're reading this, you have been on this extraordinary path of awakening as spirit, as the immortal soul that you are, for some time now. And, you've been ready to take your next big step on it. You really don't have a problem living your life in this world - after all, you've managed so far! - but, the challenging part has been how to live your life in this world, as the spirit that you truly are. How challenging is that? For starters, you have to remember that as spirit, you are limitless and eternal; yet, you were born into a limited and mortal body, in a world that seems to be regulated by time. Even Buddha, the Awakened One, said that it is hard to be a human being here. But, he said it is "even harder to hear of the path and harder still to awake, to rise, and to follow."

The great news is, however, that the more you learn to live in this world, as the spirit that you are, the more fulfilled, at peace, and happy you will be. And, since that is the purpose of every human being, we are all capable of attaining it.

So, if you want to know your purpose, see your path clearly, and joyfully take your next step in living in this world with certainty of spirit, we welcome you to join us for this extraordinary weekend seminar. During the two profound days of exploring, experiencing, discovering, and growing, you will learn about what it is to truly live as the eternal spirit that you are. We'll explore what your soul purpose is and what you need to continue successfully on your path to fulfillment. You'll learn simple, but powerful, psychic tools and energy practices that you can apply in your daily life to help you realize your true self, while you maintain your health, relationships, family, career, and all the other aspects of living in this world. You will also be guided in your development of your innate intuitive and clairvoyant abilities as essential tools to help you know your purpose and see your path clearly. You'll be ready to take your next step!
